CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

Canadian Association for Food Studies Exploration Gallery

Inaugurated in 2011, the Exploration Gallery is an experimental space at the annual CAFS Conference. It offers an opportunity to share knowledge, experience, speculative ideas, emotions, and questions about food, food culture, and food systems. An informal meeting hub and contemplation space, the Gallery also helps expand the scope of food studies, engaging both materiality and interaction.

Submissions may include student posters, installations, books/zines, slide shows and videos, two- or three-dimensional pieces, edible art, and other creative works. Note that the space is open to the public, and may not always be monitored by CAFS representatives.

Submissions must be made by Google Form no later than February 28, 2023. Notifications will be sent on March 15 and presenters must confirm their participation by March 30.

Works must be delivered to York University by May 29 and collected on June 1, the last day of the conference. Note that space is limited, particularly for screen-based works.

Download the 2012 catalogue or the 2014 album to view contributions from previous years. Included works may be featured on the CAFS website, in social media, and in an eventual catalogue or album.

Questions? Contact the Exploration Gallery curator, Lucy Godoy.
